

Signage Accreditation number

The excerpt from the BSR is as follows:

BSR Part 2 Bus safety duties, Division 1—Bus operator obligations, 10 Signage—accreditation number

(1) An accredited bus operator must ensure that the accreditation number of the bus operator is displayed in accordance with subregulation (2) on each bus operated by the bus operator.

(2) The accreditation number must be displayed—

- (a) adjacent to the front passenger loading door; and
- (b) in a position and colour so as to be clearly visible from the exterior of the bus; and
- (c) in characters at least 50 millimetres high and of proportionate width.

What does this mean – what do you need to do?

Along with your new accredited bus number plates, you now have to display your accreditation number on the side of your bus.

The below is provided as an example and may not represent your bus service. Note the placement of the signage and please ensure that the signage when placed does not cover other safety signage.
